Summer Reflection

In this summer, I successfully gain enough points to raise my GPA up to the standard level that the school required for the best returning option. I manage to do so because I had a complete change in my attitude toward the courses. I also have better time management, which allow me to better keep track of all my assignment and prevent lateness from ever happened. I felt really good when I received the result last month, and I make me believe that this is the right path that I need to maintain in order to become successful in my academic journey. This give me the confidence I needed to become a better person and a better student.

My Inspiration

One of my friends saying had become the inspiration that motivated me through out this summer, which allow me to have push I need to gain my success:

"The world wait for no one. Why wait when you can do it now?"

It just a simple sentence which I believed all of us have heard at least once in our life. But for some reason, on that date, the phrase stuck to my head till this day, gave me a large amount of push that I needed, and it motivated to successfully achieve my

My S.M.A.R.T Plan

Avoid distraction	Focus on the task at hand and remember what is more important
Immediately seek help when need	Seek help from professors or friends. Go to learning center or get personal tutor on difficult subjects
Better time management	Have a solid daily schedule and follow it strictly to built a good habit

Rutgers Resource

I'm planning to visit the Learning Center for all my upcoming academic problems in the future because I just realize how helpful it is and there is a reason for it being there. So why not use what available to us?

Challenges

There were many challenges I had this summer, some small, some big. But the most challenging one was simple: It is summer. It is the time of relaxation and entertainment. There were many distractions from every direction: family and friends. In the end, I managed to realize which is more important and focus on the task at hand. I believe that this challenge will follow me to the up coming academic year. There will be a lot more attraction in the university itself, but I will solve it through the same way: steel my self and focus on the more important matter
